As an internet delivery system of lower-division, undergraduate college courses and programs, a CCCOnline instructor may or may not teach students registered at their own institution. As such, a CCCOnline instructor is not an employee of his/her respective institution when teaching a CCCOnline course, but rather is an employee of the CCCOnline consortium.

Dawson Community College instructors interested in teaching CCCOnline courses will do so on a voluntary basis and have prior approval of the VP of Academic Affairs. Such individuals will not qualify for either an overload or a load reduction as per other compensation policies.
