

PRESENTS

Employment Law Seminar

Montana Employment and Labor Law. Ever wonder, “Wouldn’t it just be easier to run my business without employees?” Or, ever wonder why your human resource manager seems to scowl a lot? This seminar will help answer those questions. (No, it’s likely not easier to run your business without employees, but your HR manager would scowl less.) The seminar is provided by Jeff Weldon, a Billings lawyer specializing in employment and labor law. The seminar is designed for business owners, supervisors, human resource managers, and other “central office” employees who have to attend to employment or labor issues. This presentation is designed to be a review of current HR issues with an eye toward practical advice. There will be plenty of time for questions, hypothetical situations and war stories. Jeff encourages participants to email him before hand with specific questions that can be addressed during the seminar. He can be reached at jweldon@feltmartinlaw.com.

The topics to be discussed include:

- Employee Contracts
- Employment Termination
- Illegal Discrimination
- Collective Bargaining
- Exempt/Non-Exempt
- Independent Contract v. Employee
- Your Questions!

When: DATE CHANGE Wednesday, April 12, 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Where: Community Services Building, Room 201, 1201 W Holly St, Sidney

Cost: $75

Registration: Please register in advance. You can register by downloading the form at www.dawson.edu/workforce-development or by contacting Traci Masau at tmasau@dawson.edu or 406-377-9418.